

A lot of people find it difficult to write letters and often avoid doing so altogether. Letter writing is a dying art.

Do you agree with this statement?

Nowadays/ in the present day lots of people tend to communicate with each other in a simple way, so letters have lost ~~their its~~ value/ the value of letter writing ~~has fallenfalls~~.

In ancient times, our ancestors had ~~persisted persevered~~ in artworks/ handmade works. Not only ~~did they write writing~~ letters, but they also ~~pay-paid~~ more attention to their handwriting. In my opinion, due to their ~~life lives~~ situations. In other words, lack of living facilities, our previous generations had been more patient than us. They had preferred to do their best. However, it takes too long. For example, I remember that I had sent postal cards to my friends who were living in other cities for New Year's greetings. Also, ~~I reminisced-remember/recall~~ that my mother had suggested that I ~~draw drew~~ or ~~paint-ed-in on~~ a cardboard and ~~write wrote~~ the text on it. Because of showing my love to them. Besides, her offer had given ~~me a~~ lesson ~~to me~~ that we should show/ exhibit the value of ~~both either~~ everything ~~and or~~ every one with our senses and our efforts to have them by our sides.

Unlike the time of antiquity, new generations are always in a hurry. I could claim that no one knows how to write some sentences as a letter these days. In spite of our interest ~~in following to follow~~ the old traditions, we are far away from them due to our modern and also hectic lifestyle. We want/wish to reach our aims without any delay and one of them is establishing communication. To put it simply, social networks/applications connect people in an easy method. They have no feelings ~~towards them on~~. However, they are fast. Moreover, I believe that this kind of contact vanishes in ~~the a~~ long term.

In conclusion, we should keep society up to date. ~~Also also~~, we should benefit from new and modern technologies. Meanwhile, we should keep our customs alive such as letter writing.
