
Many museums charge for admission while others are free.
Do you think the advantages of charging people for admission to museums outweigh the disadvantages?

A vast majority of museums charge a fee /get money for permission to allow people to their centers but others are free of charge. While there are persuasive arguments in favor of demanding admission money to entering museums I would argue that it is better do not to charge them. people for entering museums .This essay will discuss this issue in details.

On the one hand ,some people believe that there are numerous advantages to letting people visit museums without any payment for it. From their point of view they maintain that by making free for people to visit museums they there will be more opportunities for low- income persons to visit historical and monumental places without so many difficulties.it is also mentioned some museums intentionally do not charge people for admission because in by this way they want to encourage more people to come and visit museums and this kind of act will increase the cultural of visiting museums among different levels of society. Further more,emore it can be mentioned that being free of charge for visiting museums is very helpful for schools because most schools have plans for free times of their students to provide them with valuable activities such as visiting museums so if these facilities were free of charges more school would will be eager to participate in these events.

On the other hand, some people argue that free admission for entering museums has several drawbacks .to begin with, it is said that those museums which are accepting visitors without getting any money they will face financial problems in the long run and they will not be cannot provide their staff with salaries and they will be run out of business because they do not have enough income. Besides, some experts believe that running any business without getting money from customers will reduce the value of the activity which they are providing for to customers and this is also true for cultural businesses like running museums

In conclusion, although charging people for admission has advantages I believe the drawbacks are far more. Charging people for visiting museums not only discourages s people, but also reduces the cultural visiting of historical and monumental places.
